President's Note

So spring has sprung and bikes are out everywhere – at least when it's above zero and not pouring rain or snowing! The AMCM has received approval for the many scheduled "rides" and events sanctioned for use with the Vintage plates for those who use them. As a reminder, the many rides stated throughout the week (Friday Garage Hop, Saturdays, Sundays, and Wednesday ladies rides) are on the sanctioned list to allow you to ride with the Vintage plate and explain to the coppers what you're up to – should the need to explain ever arise!!! That being said, I would like to actually have some rides on those dates, and I'm throwing out the challenge to AMCM members to think about doing the same. We can advise on Facebook about a planned meeting place and proposed route, and/or have club Secretary Kim send out an email blast to membership, or with the 2017 Rosters coming out soon, anyone can contact anyone! It will be great to see some activity in the membership other than the great line-up of events we have scheduled.

Speaking of rosters, please send a picture that you would like included in the roster to our roster guy Mark Baribeau m.baribeau@shaw.ca or club Secretary Kim pirates.pearl@gmail.com ...also send along any cool info such as any special talents or tools you have - keep it to motorcycles folks! Finally, you are welcome to let Mark and Kim know if you would prefer to receive the roster in electronic format only. We will be talking about the costs of printing the roster at the April meeting, so that may help some of you decide on printed vs. electronic!

We have not landed on a date for the annual Tiddler Run – this is the ride geared for the 305cc and under bike and is always a fun run. Bikes with higher cc are welcomed and encouraged to join in the fun, but those with a tiddler bike receive the coveted AMCM "fancy vintage" bottle of wine (others can purchase the wine for $10 a bottle). Further, the wine label will feature a member's 305cc and under bike – quite the honour! Please let me know if you are interested in hosting this event, or would like more information.

I'm looking forward to the 2017 riding season on the vintage and modern bikes, and getting together at the many scheduled and impromptu rides with AMCM members. "What a great day to be alive and riding motorcycles" – Tom Hesom, AMCM Poet Laureate.S

WOW The world of wheels

Were you there? The AMCM was, and we put on a great display. Kim won first place in her class with her BMW and sidecar.

We had 10 bikes entered representing a variety of manufacturers, including Triumph, Indian, Jawa, Harley, Honda, Ducati, BSA, Moto Guzzi, and BMW. Our presence at the WOW brought much recognition for the AMCM-MMC, and we promoted the club, the Bison Rally, and many of the charities of the various clubs including Spina Bifida. We even gained a few new members.

The members came together and supported the club and we had enough help to look after the booth and PR.

Overall everyone enjoyed the weekend. Not only did you get to look at some great bikes, you had the chance to look at a lot of great cars and trucks.

How would you like to build a Chopper??

Over the weekend I had the opportunity to get some pinstriping done, so i'm happy.

I even got a chance to do some extra cleaning.

When it came time to clean up everything went smooth. In an hour you would not have known we were there.

Everyone pitched in and it was done. We plan on being there next year, so get your machines ready.

Saturday March 25/2017 at WOW Kim Houde was inducted into the Manitoba Motorsports hall of fame!!!!!!

Motorcycling has been an important part of the Houde family for many years. Kim's father Ray and Kim's daughter Amy also has a passion for motorcycle racing.

Kim's interest in motorcycles began at the age of two when he started going to motorcycle events with his dad. He began racing at six years of age and hasn't looked back. His first motorcycle was a Honda 90 step through.

Motocross became popular in Canada in the late 60s and Kim took notice saying "Hey I want to do that. "And do that he did! From 1968 to 2004 Kim raced and won. In 1973 he was the Manitoba flat track champion in though 1.5 class. In 1979 Kim became the Canadian national 125 motocross champion. He was crowned the provincial motocross champion in 2003 and 2004 and 2005 Kim won the overall 50 world Motocross championship. Kim has raced all over the USA and Canada and as far away as Bermuda.

After semi retiring in 2005 Kim continues to race every weekend year-round. He races mostly just for fun in different age classes. Kim competes every year at Antler Lake Alberta where he races in two different classes. In addition to motocross in the summer, Kim also ice races in the winter.

Kim has belonged to the Manitoba Motorcycle Club, the Agassiz racing club, the Canadian motorcycle Association, the Manitoba Motocross association, the Manitoba old-timers motocross association Alberta old-timers motocross association and is a lifetime member of the American Motorcycle Association.

Kim has owned a variety of vehicles over the years and his favourites include a 1979 Honda CR 125 with which he won the 1979 Canadian national motocross championship, a Honda 90 step through, a Honda CRF 450 with which he won the world championship in 1963, a Chevy impala. and a 1956 Merc. pickup which was used as a tow vehicle for 10 years.

According to Kim the single most memorable moment and is racing career was meeting his wife Sandra at a race in Austin Manitoba in 1979. Another important event was winning the over 50 world championship in 2005 and also racing against his daughter Amy in Minneapolis when she turned 25.

One special event for Kim, his father Ray, and daughter Amy, was when all three participated in the Prostate Cancer Ride for & Dad in 2016.

Kim has no thoughts of slowing down just yet, and still rides every weekend.

Most Embarrassing Moment on a Motorcycle

By Anonymous

When I was 16 and growing up in another province, the 'age of majority' was 21. I had been riding since I was 15 and had traded my Honda 50 for a Honda 305 Superhawk at age 16 since a motorcycle was my transportation year around in that warmer climate.

Motorcycles weren't very common at that time (1965) so the riders in my area formed an informal 'club' and we decided to hold a New Year's Eve party. It was an open party with one and all welcome. The party was to be held at a members home on the other side of town in a secluded area and his parents were out of town for the holidays.

On the last day of the year the roads were in good condition so I decided to go on the motorcycle. I had never been to a "motorcycle club" New Years Eve party and it was likely to be well-attended so it looked like it would be fun and maybe even a bit wild!

I arrived at the member's home about mid-evening and there were a half dozen bikes and a few cars parked in the yard. The house was in a valley by a creek just outside of town in a pretty deserted area and there wasn't a "mature adult" around, just bikers. (They are mutually exclusive you know.) As I walked in someone handed me a beer. The music was loud, the house was pretty full, smoky, and warm. Everybody was having a good time, bike stories were going around, as were the jokes and pranks.

I wasn't used to drinking, but over the next few hours I drank far too many beer! Having never had unencumbered access to beer and never heard "pace yourself" I rather over-did it. By 11:30 the party was in full swing but I was feeling VERY unwell. I was going to be sick! Rather than put a damper on the party, I decided to quietly take my leave and head home.

My home town was very small and only had one intersection of any significance, one intersection and one traffic light. I was going to have to pass through that intersection on the way home. There were four businesses on each side of the intersection and each business had a parking lot so it was a favourite hangout for the local constabulary to keep an eye on traffic.

Being drunk as a skunk, under age, on a motorcycle, on New Years Eve, and feeling distinctly wobbly, I was concerned that the police might be watching the intersection. Sure enough, when the corner parking lots came into view, the town police cruiser was sitting there with the engine idling watching for possible 'offenders' to ticket! I rode carefully and properly through town in case someone may be watching but now there WOULD be someone watching - the police!

With my luck, the light had just turned yellow as I approached. Damn! I was going to have to stop under police scrutiny. I knew I had to do a perfect performance to avoid attracting any unwanted attention and potential serious consequences!

I kept a perfectly straight line down the lane, up to the intersection, decelerated slowly and smoothly and stopped EXACTLY on the stop line without a single wobble.

As I sat there on my bike feeling very smug for doing a perfect approach and stop under adverse conditions, the world slowly started to tilt to the right and down I went! I FORGOT TO PUT A FOOT DOWN!!! DAMN!!!

I picked my bike up as nonchalantly as I could under the circumstances and remounted while watching the police car out of the corner of my eye but the car didn't move. After an interminably long time the damned light finally turned green and I gradually pulled away while still watching the police car in my peripheral vision but it still didn't move and I got home safely (and spent an absolutely miserable night talking to God on 'the big porcelain phone'. My parents never said a word about New Years Eve).

I used to drop into the police station regularly to play cribbage with the locals and a week or so after New Years Eve, stopped in for the regular cribbage game. When I walked in, everybody broke out in uproarious laughter! One officer asked through his tears "Did you have a good time New Years Eve?" and they all burst into laughter again! Then I understood why the police car didn't move on New Years Eve - the officers in the cruiser were all busting a gut with laughter! So much for "getting away with it" but thank God for small towns and guardian angels!

A Strange Love Story

She's been waiting patiently for what seems like an eternity
In her cold dark cell, she hasn't seen a single solitary soul in months.
He keeps her chained to the floor, but she doesn't mind.
She knows that he loves her, and would never leave her for long,
No matter what the cause.

She is not concerned, she knows full well.
He will return. He always has and always will.
"It's cold in here," she thinks as she lies swathed in blankets,
But she knows she will once again feel the warmth of the sun.
She always has, every year of her long life.

She hears his key in the lock!
She can sense the light, although she is still blinded
By the blankets that have covered her these many months.
All at once she senses his warm and tender touch
And she shivers in anticipation.

The blankets come off and she sees his loving face,
Feels his hands caressing her appealing form for the first time in many months.
His loving touch warms her, and she feels his keys
Unlocking the chains that bind her and keep her his own.
She knows that no other man shall ever lay a hand on her.

Her thirst is quenched by a long cool drink,
Her blood is warmed by a transfusion he thought was needed.
He has not allowed her to wear makeup or look her best
For longer than she can remember, but now he lovingly applies a fresh coat.
She is overwhelmed, she wants to make him so proud to own her.

He scrubs her like he never has before.
She feels like a beauty queen with all this attention.
She wants nothing more than to make him smile!
She will do anything he may ask of her willingly
With not a single whine or complaint.

He kicks her! HARD! Then again! And again!
She grunts out in mild protest, but strangely it doesn't hurt.
She's been through this many, many times before.
One more kick and she finds the voice she has not been allowed
To use for so many months.

She screams, but not in protest, more in triumph
To be allowed to speak her mind once again!
She yells, just as loud as she can, it feels so fantastic
To let the whole world know that she is still alive and well!
She feels so free and alive once again.

He mounts her from the side as he always does, throwing one leg over her.
She feels his weight settle on the small of her back.
He lets her know she may move merely by manipulating her most tender parts.
She loves it, and responds by howling just as loud as she knows how to.
She begins to move, as wildly as she ever has, carrying him for yet another wild ride.

She roars at the top of her lungs as she stretches her legs
He rides her like he never wants to get off, no eight second rodeo wonder here!
She races on for hours under his masterful control
Until her thirst is so great she can run no longer.
He allows her to stop for another long cool drink and to cool off a bit.

The love they share has been there for longer than either can recall
Her only aim in life is to please him, and never let him down.
She will do anything he asks of her, never once speaking out
Or complaining, or asking for another man's attention.
She knows she never will.

He reaches down and caresses her with all the love in his heart.
She has been faithful to him for so long, never asking for much.
Not like all her younger, prettier counterparts.
They fit so well together, nothing will ever make them drift apart.

She knows he loves his Old 80.

How about some humor

An old, retired Biker rides into town and sees a whole lot of bikes parked outside the bar. He parks his ancient Harley knucklehead and is about to go inside when a bunch of young drunk Bikers burst out. Their leader is brandishing a whisky bottle in one hand and a 9mm Glock G17 pistol in the other. "Hey! Old man!" he says. "Do you know how to dance?!!" He proceeds to shoot at the old guys feet to the hilarious laughter of his friends and the small crowd which had gathered. The old man had to dance and having had their fun they turned to start going back inside. The old man quickly reached into his saddle bag and produced a sawn-off shotgun. There was dead silence when they heard him rack a buckshot shell into the breech. The cocky pistol-shooter looked into a 12 bore black muzzle, and froze. "Have you ever kissed an old Biker's arse?!!" asked the old man.

"No" replied the shooter, "But I've always wanted to!!"

Limerick for the day!!!!

THERE WAS A YOUNG LADY NAMED SARAH
WE COULDN'T GET SOMEONE MORE FAIRER
AND WE ALL KNOW
SHE'S ATTACHED TO JOE
ALSO HAPPENS TO BE OUR CLUB TREASURER

DID YOU KNOW- - - ?

WHO INVENTED THE SPOKED WHEEL??

Some years ago when this was the question when “Motorcycle Jeopardy” used to be part of our Bison Rallies, one quiz team wrote their answer as ;-- “Billy Watt” ! Our much-revered Honorary Member Bill Watt happened to be part of an opposing team at the time, but took it in good stride and had a suitable quick come-back as was usual with that long-time much-missed AMCM member. Sources vary about who the inventor was. Most put it as one James Starley referred to as “The Father of the British Cycle Industry” whose Ariel Penny-Farthing went on sale in 1871. Some dispute this and say he merely developed an improved method of spoke tensioning.

Yet others say it was an aeronautical engineer called George Cayley as early as 1808. The first patent for wire wheels was issued in London, England in 1826 to Theodore Jones. Then the first patent for wire wheels on bicycles was issued to Eugene Meyer in Paris, France in 1869.

The accredited first wire wheel able to withstand the pressures of acceleration and braking on a motorcycle (or car) is attributed to the Birmingham, England, company of Rudge-Whitworth Ltd. Rudge-Whitworth was the result of two bicycle manufacturers merging;-- Rudge of Coventry and Whitworth of Birmingham. Founded by Charles Henry Pugh with his two sons Charles Vernon and John. Like many of the British manufacturers they started off making bicycle saddles and then bicycles, and then in 1907 they developed a modified and strengthened bicycle wheel to be used on their motorcycles and sold wire spoked wheels to car manufacturers as well.

So the correct answer to that “Motorcycle Jeopardy” question of long ago was;--- “The Rudge-Whitworth” company of Birmingham, England. (and not Billy Watt!) 1915 Rudge “multi” 500cc (continuous variable speed drive) Today’s Subaru cars have it and they proudly think they invented it!

Motorcycle Matters

“Tips on restoring an antique”

by Bert Bentley

Most people find it very fascinating, thrilling, or even challenging in exploring the unknown taking an interesting trip, restoring a piece of rare furniture, or maybe a colonial home.

Since the internal combustion engine as we know it, owes so much of its development to the motorcycle, why not restore one of the old rare jewels to it's old original beauty as it looked when it appeared on the showroom floor.

Restoring an antique motorcycle can be very challenging. There have been hundreds of different makes, most of which very little is known. A couple that with determining the year it was made the model colour replacing the missing parts a lot acquiring the proper size tires what was originally nickel plated name lettering striping and a host of other problems.

Securing an antique motorcycle in reasonably good condition is a major triumph. Remember however there is no blue book of fixed prices which means the pricing is always negotiable between buyer and seller with the seller always having the advantage.

After securing the old bike in the “as is” condition along with the take it or leave it proposition, then maybe you wonder why you decided to be such a glutton for work.

Before you disassemble any parts you should make thorough study of the machine thoroughly checking every little detail. Decide what the missing part looked like, seek out any available for literature that might have a bearing on your machine. Such as an old village manual old ads or even an old timer who is possibly an old rider or a dealer or a member of the AMCM who you think has the information you desire. This member will be happy to help maybe supplying a missing part.

Now that you have learned all that you can about your machine you can now start taking it apart or maybe taking it out of the basket I suggest that the mechanical part should be done first thoroughly reconditioning the engine using substitute purchase close to the original as possible it is important that your machine runs well and other mechanical parts work properly and reliably it is not enough for the machine to just look original therefore I suggest that highly precision work be done by a professional

Now that engine and the mechanical parts are complete store them safely and carefully until you were ready to assemble
When restoring the rest of the machine carefully study every part look for a little clues such as little original paint that may be preserved between two pieces of metal that was never taken apart check closely for evidence whether a certain part was originally painted or plated. Paint all others. I suggest whenever possible to re-spoke wheels replat hubs if originally plated. (most were)

The rims can be better restored without spokes.

In conditioning frame, tanks, fenders, etc. it is very necessary to remove all traces of rust there by exposing broken cracked rusted out and otherwise deteriorated areas. These broken or deteriorated parts can usually be taken and repaired by filling in with solder, welding, or braising. It is also very necessary to get out all the dents rust pit holes and restoring the original part to original shape. Pit holes and minor dents can usually be taken care of by soldering or a good autobody plastic and body putty. These application materials should be ground and sanded down to a smooth surface. With this operation completed the prepared surface should be primed with a good grade of primer paint and sanded down possibly re-puttying and re-priming until all the services are completely free of all signs of rust pit holes or any other deterioration. Now that all services are completed sand and paint each one with the spraygun however before applying paint be perfectly sure that the paint is the right type and colour or is near the right colour as possible. When paint is completed all painted surfaces should be compounded lightly with a very fine compound. Do not wax before striping. I suggest that after the proper striping has been determined, which includes locating the striping properly, colour of stripe and the appropriate width of stripes, that the work should be done by a professional, under supervision, whenever a decal cannot be secured.

After several days of drying at room temperature 70°F all painted surfaces maybe waxed not compounded.

After all these things have been done you are ready to assemble first mount the motor and the transmission clutch pedal cranks belt pulleys or whatever the case may be. Tanks and fenders last to prevent damage wheels may be mounted after fenders are mounted.

Now your machine is all together wheels all mounted with tires seat in place with original leather if possible check all mechanical parts before attempting to start engine with your engine has oil or lubrication that may be needed for proper operation. Start her up.

Now with a year of all your spare time and the money you would've spent for pleasures once more she is ready for the show room floor as of yesteryear.

Points to remember are.....

Never get in a big hurry

Never let your hobby become a task

Never try to restore by glamorizing are customizing your bike keep it original as possible

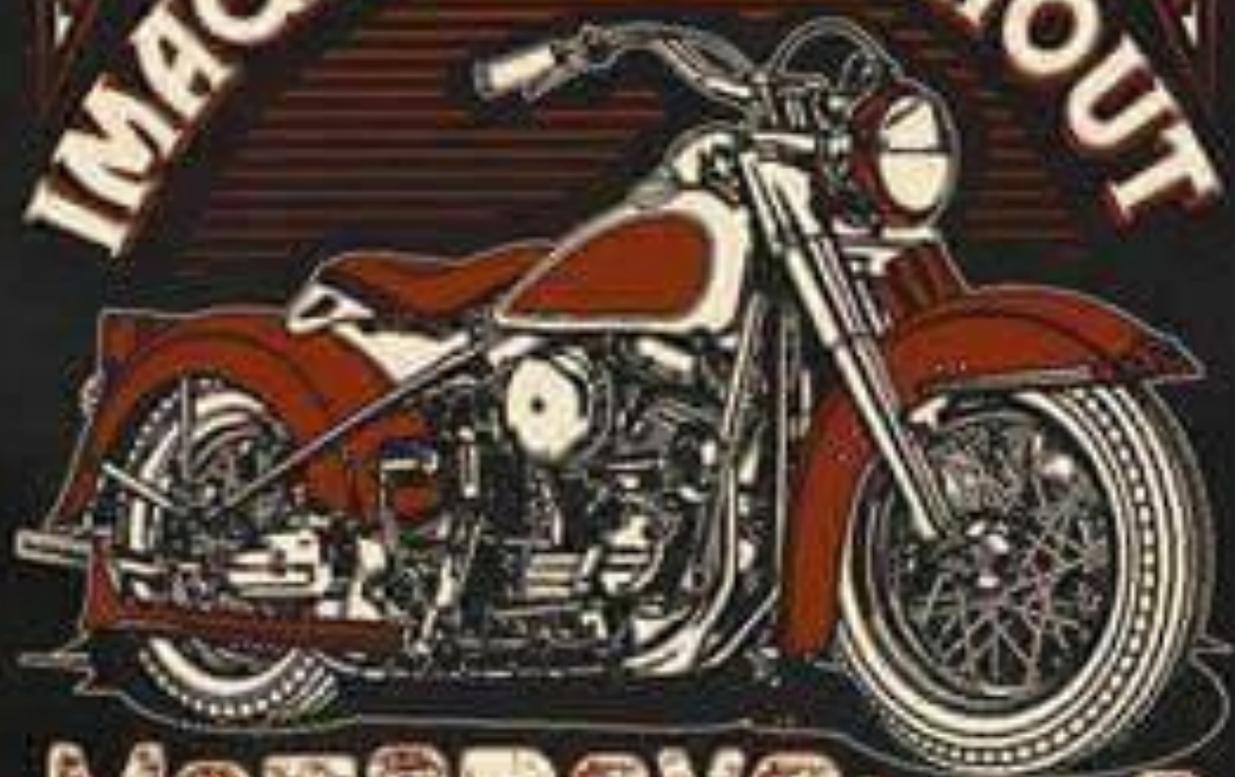

Do not try to restore with trophies as your goal

Remember this is a hobby of a chosen few who are trying to preserve the glorious history of the motorcycle which mothered modern transportation by the internal combustion engine as we know it today.

The grand payoff is the pride of ownership.

AMCM MMC Trivia

WHAT MAKE OF
MOTORCYCLE IS THIS?

Clues;--

It is an early flat tank
with instrument on tank
It seems to be a single or very narrow-angle V
twin

Carbide lighting puts it as a VERY early era
looks like chain drive,
so later than the belt
era

The flag could be
Denmark or Finland
